

Leadership Richmond

youth now • enterprise • next • community

Leadership Richmond—Youth Now
Youth and Mentors 2011

Youth Now Quotes

“The program is an incredible foundation for cementing contacts and gaining a wealth of skills. Leadership Richmond has established an understanding that leadership is not an innate ability someone possesses; instead, leadership involves a skill-set that can be learned and refined.”

- Mark Mazzone, Graduate 2010

“This program has provided a unique and valuable learning opportunity while facilitating networking and involvement in the community”

- Daisy Byrne, Graduate 2011

Youth Now is designed to harness the leadership potential found in our community by training young adults, who are high school graduates and under the age of 26, to serve as board members for local non-profit organizations. It is an opportunity for non-profit organizations to strengthen their boards through the infusion of younger community leaders.

Organization Quotes

“This program has given me a new and optimistic perspective on the community of Richmond and the young people who are the driving force behind its growth and exciting future.”

Gary Schubak, Board Chair
Turning Point Recovery Society

“The leader gained valuable leadership skills and knowledge and the organization benefited from some new, progressive ideas.”

Janice Barr, Executive Director
Richmond Society for Community Living

“The Richmond Community Foundation has not only been impressed with the level of expertise and participation by our youth leaders but also by their ability to, in turn, encourage and mentor other young adults to become a part of youth philanthropy in Richmond.”

Chris Evans, Board Member

Application Forms Available Online
VISIT www.volunteerrichmond.ca